Los Angeles' original animal welfare group turns 137!
spcaLA to throw a birthday benefit at Pacific Park

Los Angeles, CA – Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Los Angeles (spcaLA) will celebrate its 137th birthday with Party on the Pier, on Thursday, November 6th at Pacific Park on the Santa Monica Pier from 7pm to 10pm.

“spcaLA has been preventing animal cruelty since before the automobile, not much in Southern California can boast that kind of staying power,” said spcaLA President, Madeline Bernstein. “spcaLA’s Party on the Pier celebrates the generosity of generations of donors, as much as it celebrates our birthday.”

At Party on the Pier, VIPs will sip delicious cocktails and nibble on gourmet vegetarian desserts and appetizers in the VIP Lounge. All event-goers will enjoy unlimited rides, a tasty vegetarian dinner, fun, games, and more – all to benefit spcaLA shelter pets.

Tickets are available at spcaLA.com until noon on Thursday, November 6th. A limited number of General Admission ($40/each) and VIP($150/each) tickets will be available at the door.

spcaLA is a local, independent, nonprofit organization, not affiliated with any other group. There is no national, or international, spca or humane society. Since 1877, spcaLA has protected the abused and abandoned animals of the Southland and continues to be the only private animal welfare organization that is also Law Enforcement in Los Angeles.
